TechSource Announces the Opening of a New Office in Aiken, SC

Aiken, SC TechSource, a leading science and engineering consultancy, is proud to announce the opening of its newest office at in Aiken, South Carolina. This location will serve as the local office for our Savannah River Project Management Office (SR PMO), further solidifying TechSource's commitment to providing exceptional, client-focused, and mission-driven solutions to the region.

This expansion underscores our dedication to supporting the vital work at Savannah River while strengthening ties with the local community. “We are excited to establish a presence in the Aiken community and to deepen our partnership with SRS and SRNL,” shared Ginger Keenan, SR PMO Managing Director at TechSource. “This new office enhances our ability to support our client’s critical mission while reaffirming our commitment to being an engaged and contributing member of the region.”

To mark the opening of our Aiken office, TechSource is hosting an Open House event for colleagues, clients, and members of the local community. The celebration will include a ribbon-cutting ceremony, offering a special moment to honor this important milestone.

“Our decision to establish a presence in Aiken underscores our unwavering dedication to being a long-term partner to the Savannah River Site (SRS) and Savannah River National Laboratory (SRNL),” said Brian D’Andrea, CEO of TechSource. “As they advance the nation’s strategic deterrent efforts, we are uniquely positioned to bridge gaps in science, engineering, and program management. This ensures we remain a trusted partner, delivering proven solutions that drive mission success.”

TechSource looks forward to continuing its legacy of delivering excellence as we expand operations in Aiken. The new office is a step forward in fostering collaboration and innovation in a region that plays a crucial role in national security.
